Holista Colltech Ltd announced that it has signed an agreement with Switzerland-based Veripan for the latter to sell its patented Neosolite GI, which can lower glycemic index in baked products. The GI measures how quickly blood sugar levels rise, relative to consumption of pure glucose (which has a reading of 100), after eating a particular type of food. Foods with carbohydrates that break down more slowly, releasing glucose more gradually into the bloodstream, tend to have a low GI.
